

Creating Options for Higher Education Leaders

Protect Funds Needed to Transform Campuses

COVID-19 has forced funding reductions on almost everyone, but many educational institutions have limited options for cutting costs to match. At the same time, the safety and quality of shared spaces have never been more important to students and parents.

There are ways to avoid depleting resources or taking on new debt, while directing spending to today's priorities, like distance learning technology and the safety of learning environments. ABM projects help higher education leaders achieve improvements they need to reduce spending, pay for upgrades, and relieve stressed budgets.

We go beyond standard energy projects, creating options that help districts put money back where schools need it most. Our guaranteed energy savings and professional service agreements give you the ability to focus funding on improving outcomes for students, faculty, staff, and your community.
